

TAX RESIDENCY AND FOREIGN TAX INFORMATION

INDIVIDUAL SELF-CERTIFICATION

Under New Zealand law, ANZ must collect a self-certification from you about your tax residency status. ANZ must provide your information (even if you refuse to give information or a declaration) to Inland Revenue, who may share that information with overseas tax authorities under international agreements.

You must complete this self-certification form and return it to ANZ if you're an individual (including sole traders) with an ANZ account. Where two or more individuals jointly hold an ANZ account, each individual must complete a separate self-certification.

If you are unsure how to complete this form or do not understand the consequences of not providing the correct information, please seek advice from a tax professional, lawyer, or other adviser before you complete this form. For more information about why you need to complete this form, see www.anz.com/aeoi or www.ird.govt.nz/infoshare.
